

in the name of the author and publisher of the book and they are to inquire - upon / I have heard that Fleming made some statement in a newspaper that he stated he was connected with the "Family of the Author of the book and the author of the book

Longfellow

Longfellow was born and raised in a sparsely populated area. His father died when he was very young.

He studied law at Harvard and was educated by his mother. He did not receive any formal education beyond the common school.

He became a teacher and a minister.

He became a poet and a writer of fiction.
He wrote in isolation from society and lived a simple life. He was a vegetarian and a follower of pacifism. He was also a communist and a socialist. He was a proponent of non-violence and pacifism.
He was a member of the New England
Literary Club and the New England Society.

Longfellow

Longfellow

Longfellow

Poet

Longfellow - Poet and Author

Longfellow - Poet and Author
Author

Longfellow - Poet and Author